MATILDA

Friday 18th September

Lo: Descriptive writing

Suddenly I saw a huge bowling head and it was climbing up the mountain. It was a huge Iron monster chasing me. I could hear him banging his feet to the road. It went like bang and bang. I can smell rusty parts of the huge Iron monster. I felt petrified and my body started to shake when the great monster came up the mountain.

✓ Fantastic Ryan.

RYAN

Friday 18th September

Lo: Descriptive writing

Suddenly I saw a huge Iron head like a giant bowling ball coming out of the water. His eyes were as red as fire. His teeth were as sharp as swords. Every footstep was as loud as thunder and each stomp shook the ground. I could smell sea salt. I was petrified. I tried to run but my feet were stuck to the ground and I could not move. My heart pounded like a drum in my chest.

STANFORD

Castleton Village is dissimilar to the claustrophobic London streets. Castleton has beautiful countryside whereas London has grimy streets and polluted air. Castleton has lovely walks however the city is crowded with people and shops. The village has a slow, peaceful stream running through it in contrast London has polluted, rushing river through it called The River Thames. In Castleton residents are awoken by chirping larks, a noisy cockerel and the rustling of bushes in the morning wind. In the city people are awoken by people rushing to work, engines roaring and the loud clanging of Big Ben.

Oxford Street
Castleton village is situated in the Peak District whereas in London is the busiest part of London. Rows of old, cobblestone cottages overlook a shallow stream whilst in London overcrowded shops tower above the noisy, grimy streets. On Oxford Street tourists are surprised by scrawny tramps littering the streets, the polluted air and unhealthy cars coughing out fuel. The murky, morose Thames river in contrast with the peaceful waterfalls of Castleton is a dark swamp. In Derbyshire the song of chirping jackdaws fills the air although in London crows screech from the cracked rooftops. Residents of the Peak District are awakened by the rustling ashtress in a gentle breeze, swallows singing perched in ancient oaks and early rising friends. Luscious lilacs and dancing daffodils sway through the day.
